

Hello families,

Can you believe that we are on our last week of school! Your kids are busily working on highlighting their year's work. Some classes are working on tiny house math, coding (floor matrixes to bunny's), and in Sherry's class Ab Ed themed animations. Middle years are setting up for their learning fair, engaging in a letter writing to share their learning with upcoming 'big kids', as well as a play.

Wuqanqankimik 2022!

Wildflower took part in School District's 8 run, walk, and wheel event, each electing to circle their school sites to highlighting reconciliation - 'moving forward with good strides'.

In Nelson, we circled around a big drum with Heather's class leading a school drumming of the Traveling song.

Each site had a student take the lead in beginning with the Territorial acknowledgement.

Biomimicry:

Emily's class is working on showing their creations based on their year theme biomimicry. Hearing them talk about their learning was incredible. Going into the class, the level of engagement and thrill to describe what they were in process of drafting was a sight to be seen. From one day to the next, each project grows in its complexity. Definitely lots to be celebrated as these imaginative students finalize for their exhibition.

Rain or shine: Animal hospital play to collaborative drawing. Wildflower kids are the best!

Best Play ever!!

I cannot say enough about the Seedling's play, 'The Very Noisy Bear'. So much went into this production. A massive thank you to Emma, Cole, the 'Big Kids', and the band (name yet to come). Parents you have so much to be proud of! Also, what a way for the lovely Janelle to get to play such a beautiful role. Honored to have been present for each of Thursday's productions. Incredible!
